The TExES Theatre EC–12 (180) test is designed to assess whether an examinee has the requisite knowledge and skills that an entry-level educator in this field in Texas public schools must possess. The 100 multiple-choice questions are based on the Theatre EC–12 test framework. Questions on this test range from grades EC–12. The test may contain questions that do not count toward the score.

The number of scored questions will not vary; however, the number of questions that are not scored may vary in the actual test. Your final scaled score will be based only on scored questions.

The Standards

Theatre EC–12 Standard I
The theatre teacher knows how to plan and implement effective theatre instruction and assessment and provide students with learning experiences that enhance their knowledge, skills and appreciation in theatre.

Theatre EC–12 Standard II
The theatre teacher understands and applies skills for creating, utilizing and/or performing dramatic material.

Theatre EC–12 Standard III
The theatre teacher understands and applies skills for producing and directing theatrical productions.

Theatre EC–12 Standard IV
The theatre teacher understands and applies knowledge of design and technical theatre.

Theatre EC–12 Standard V
The theatre teacher understands and applies knowledge of theatre from different cultures and historical periods.

Theatre EC–12 Standard VI
The theatre teacher understands and applies skills for responding to, analyzing and evaluating theatre and understands the interrelationship between theatre and other disciplines.
Domains and Competencies

The content covered by this test is organized into broad areas of content called domains. Each domain covers one or more of the educator standards for this field. Within each domain, the content is further defined by a set of competencies. Each competency is composed of two major parts:

- The competency statement, which broadly defines what an entry-level educator in this field in Texas public schools should know and be able to do.
- The descriptive statements, which describe in greater detail the knowledge and skills eligible for testing.

Domain I — Creating, Performing and Producing Theatre

Competency 001: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of the basic principles, forms and methods of process-centered drama.

The beginning teacher:

A. Recognizes and describes process-centered drama methods (e.g., creative drama, theatre in education) for communicating ideas, feelings and experiences through improvisation, pantomime, dramatic play, story dramatization, storytelling, puppetry, role playing and playwriting.

B. Knows how to use improvisation and theatre games as preparatory techniques for performance and process-centered drama.

C. Demonstrates knowledge of source materials for improvisation and dramatic play (e.g., literature, history, current events, imagination, personal stories, folklore).

D. Recognizes the difference between process-centered and production-centered theatre experiences and knows how to use improvisation to generate ideas for stories, movements, characters and environments for both.

E. Knows how to apply skills for improvising, writing and refining monologues and scenes that effectively communicate character, plot, setting, theme and mood.

F. Demonstrates understanding of proper formatting for a script (e.g., identifying stage directions, characters, acts and scenes; spacing).

G. Understands methods for interacting effectively with others in role playing, improvisation, rehearsal and performance.

H. Demonstrates knowledge of techniques for engaging in ensemble work and collaborative creative processes.

I. Understands critical-thinking skills used in creating, utilizing and/or performing dramatic material.

NOTE: After clicking on a link, right click and select "Previous View" to go back to original text.
Competency 002: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of acting methods and techniques.

The beginning teacher:

A. Recognizes and describes various classical and contemporary acting techniques, methods and styles, including emergent performance practices.

B. Demonstrates knowledge of methods for developing an actor’s focus, sensory perception and characterization skills, including activities directed at sensory awareness and emotional and sensory recall.

C. Understands methods for strengthening focus, sensory perception and characterization.

D. Understands skills for creating roles, developing character relationships and reflecting on human experiences in improvised and scripted scenes.

E. Recognizes and describes elements related to an actor’s analysis of a text, including identification of movement, beats, subtext, actions, objectives and key words and phrases.

F. Analyzes scripts to determine the physical, intellectual, psychological, cultural, political and social dimensions of characters and character relationships and divides scripts into their component parts.

G. Understands vocal techniques used in acting, including warm-ups to prepare the voice, elements of sound production (e.g., diction, phrasing, pitch, breath control, projection), vocal safety and injury avoidance procedures, dialect work and ways to use voice and speech (e.g., pitch, tempo, tone, timing, pacing) to communicate feelings and ideas and to develop characterization.

H. Demonstrates knowledge of skills for using the voice and body expressively to perform scripts written in a variety of time periods and styles.

I. Understands physical techniques used in acting, including warm-ups to prepare the body, relaxation techniques, centering, isolation of body parts, psychological gesture, neutral and character masks and techniques for using body position and gesture to communicate meaning and develop characterization.
Competency 003: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of the principles and techniques of directing theatrical productions.

The beginning teacher:

A. Understands the director’s role as a leader, communicator, unifying force, problem solver, interpreter of script and collaborator.

B. Recognizes the director’s relationship and responsibility to the actors, designers, stage manager and audience as well as the director’s responsibility to the script.

C. Knows how to create and communicate a unified vision that results in a clear production concept for company members.

D. Demonstrates familiarity with skills and techniques for creating a safe and positive working environment that encourages and promotes collaboration, trust, consensus building and creativity among all members of the production team.

E. Demonstrates knowledge of methods for analyzing a script to determine a message for the work and how its component parts help communicate that message to an audience.

F. Knows how to motivate and guide company members through rehearsal and performance, using communication, collaboration, trust, consensus building and creativity.

G. Knows how to apply methods for guiding actors in creating roles and developing character relationships.

H. Analyzes elements (e.g., focus, levels, balance) and factors involved in developing a ground plan, stage movement and blocking and selects composition techniques appropriate for various needs and goals.
Competency 004: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of the principles of producing theatrical performances.

The beginning teacher:

A. Understands considerations and procedures for selecting and researching a script.

B. Evaluates and compares various methods of holding auditions (e.g., prepared monologues, cold readings, improvisation) and casting (e.g., casting according to learning objectives, nontraditional casting).

C. Knows how to coordinate an efficient rehearsal schedule.

D. Demonstrates knowledge of procedures for scheduling, budgeting, planning, promoting and managing theatrical performances.

E. Demonstrates knowledge of legal issues (e.g., royalties, copyrights, liability, contracts) related to theatrical productions.

F. Identifies and analyzes elements involved in directing and producing student theatrical productions, including considerations of student development, cultural diversity, audience characteristics and production factors (e.g., performance space, number of participants) in the selection of works for performance.
Domain II — Design and Technical Theatre

Competency 005: The teacher understands how to develop an overall technical and design environment for theatrical productions.

The beginning teacher:

A. Demonstrates knowledge of design principles and elements relevant to theatrical productions, the functions of design in theatrical productions and design styles and their characteristics.

B. Recognizes the characteristics of different types of performance spaces (e.g., proscenium stage, studio/black box, thrust stage, classroom, arena, found space) and analyzes ways in which the characteristics of a performance space can influence production decisions.

C. Knows how to analyze dramatic texts, including themes, settings, times, literary styles, genres and characters, to determine technical and design requirements.

D. Understands how to analyze the effectiveness of lighting, sound, scenery, properties, costumes and makeup choices in communicating the concept of a production.

Competency 006: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of principles and techniques of theatrical lighting and sound production.

The beginning teacher:

A. Demonstrates knowledge of basic lighting and sound technology, equipment and safety practices.

B. Recognizes the principles, elements and techniques of lighting and sound design for a theatrical production.

C. Knows how to apply basic techniques of theatrical lighting and sound production (e.g., using color mediums [gels], designing and reading a lighting plot and instrument schedule, selecting and designing sound effects and background music).

D. Demonstrates an understanding of safety considerations and procedures associated with the use of theatrical lighting and sound equipment.

E. Understands considerations in selecting lighting and sound to help create a particular theatrical environment.
Competency 007: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of principles and techniques for designing and creating theatrical sets and properties.

The beginning teacher:

A. Recognizes and describes the technical aspects of set and property construction (e.g., unit set, flats, drops, platforms, painting), including the use of power tools and safety practices.

B. Knows how to apply basic techniques of scenery and property construction (e.g., manufacturing flats, constructing a unit set, painting scenery, operating tools and machinery).

C. Demonstrates an understanding of safety considerations and procedures associated with the design and construction of theatrical sets and properties.

D. Understands the design considerations in selecting or creating scenery and properties to help create a particular theatrical environment.

Competency 008: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of principles and techniques for designing and creating theatrical costumes and makeup.

The beginning teacher:

A. Recognizes the basic functions of costumes in theatrical production.

B. Recognizes and describes historical, regional and cultural styles of dress.

C. Demonstrates knowledge of construction techniques and materials for creating costumes and demonstrates familiarity with other methods of obtaining costumes.

D. Recognizes the characteristics and functions of different types of makeup, makeup materials and techniques for applying makeup to suggest character and communicate the concept of the production.

E. Knows how to apply basic principles and techniques of costume construction and makeup application (e.g., cutting, dyeing, sewing, care and maintenance of costumes; character makeup and simple prosthetics).

F. Demonstrates an understanding of safety considerations and procedures associated with the design, construction and use of theatrical costumes and makeup.

G. Understands considerations in selecting costumes and makeup to help create a particular theatrical environment.
Competency 009: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of backstage procedures and the roles of backstage personnel.

The beginning teacher:

A. Knows backstage procedures (e.g., setting and striking techniques, unit set preparation, curtain and fly rail operation, set and lighting crew preparation, backstage etiquette and safety).

B. Recognizes and describes roles and responsibilities of individuals involved in technical theatre (e.g., stage manager, production manager, technical director, production crew).

C. Knows safety practices and procedures relevant to technical theatre, including practices related to emotional and physical well-being.

D. Knows strategies for assembling a production crew and teaching them proper etiquette, safety and backstage techniques.
Domain III — Theatre History and Culture

Competency 010: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of the history of theatre in cultures throughout the world.

The beginning teacher:

A. Recognizes and describes characteristics and techniques associated with theatre from different historical periods and cultural traditions.

B. Demonstrates knowledge of historical and cultural developments in theatrical styles and genres.

C. Understands theatre heritage as it is preserved in dramatic text, traditions and conventions.

D. Analyzes the development of dramatic forms, production practices and theatrical traditions across cultures and historical periods.

E. Recognizes major theatrical figures, plays and works from a variety of historical periods and cultural traditions.

F. Analyzes ways in which specific dramatic texts and contemporary theatre conventions reflect theatre heritage.

Competency 011: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of the role of theatre in society.

The beginning teacher:

A. Analyzes and evaluates influences on theatre in different times, places and cultures.

B. Analyzes and compares aesthetic philosophies and the treatment of characters, situations and themes in dramatic works from various cultures and historical periods.

C. Recognizes and describes the emotional and social effects of theatre on individuals, communities and cultures.

D. Analyzes ways in which cultural diversity and other aspects of U.S. society have influenced contemporary theatre in the United States.

E. Recognizes and describes the role and influence of live theatre and dramatic media in U.S. society (e.g., prompting examination of ideas and values, enhancing multicultural and gender awareness, promoting self-awareness).

NOTE: After clicking on a link, right click and select "Previous View" to go back to original text.
Domain IV — Responding to and Analyzing Theatre

Competency 012: The teacher knows how to use appropriate procedures, criteria and vocabulary in the evaluation, analysis and criticism of theatre and dramatic media.

The beginning teacher:

A. Knows the vocabulary of dramatic criticism and dramaturgy, including basic vocabulary related to theatrical conventions (e.g., fourth wall, catharsis, alienation effect).

B. Understands techniques, procedures and the ethical considerations used in criticism of theatre and dramatic media (e.g., film, video, television, radio, electronic media).

C. Understands how to apply concepts of evaluation to live theatre and dramatic media.

D. Analyzes how specific artistic choices are used to support the major themes of theatrical productions.

E. Analyzes the effects of various factors (e.g., publicity, physical environment, talkbacks, study guides) on an audience’s response to and appreciation of a theatrical production.

F. Demonstrates knowledge of resources available for research regarding theatrical productions (e.g., published scripted materials, electronic resources, current technologies, theatre professionals).

Competency 013: The teacher understands the relationship of theatre to other art forms and other disciplines.

The beginning teacher:

A. Compares and contrasts theatre and other dramatic media, including their uses of dramatic structure.

B. Analyzes the ways in which other art forms are used in theatrical productions.

C. Recognizes and describes the relationship of theatre to other art forms and other disciplines.

D. Analyzes similarities and differences between theatrical experiences and other literary and artistic experiences.
Domain V — Theatre Education

Competency 014: The teacher knows how to plan, implement and evaluate theatre instruction.

The beginning teacher:

A. Demonstrates knowledge of the content and performance standards for theatre that compose the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills (TEKS) and recognizes the significance of the TEKS in developing a theatre curriculum.

B. Knows how to organize, sequence and evaluate lessons in ways that promote effective student learning in theatre.

C. Demonstrates understanding of teaching methods that effectively integrate theatre instruction with instruction in other art forms and other subject areas for students at different grade levels.

D. Knows how to integrate instructional and communication technologies to enhance teaching and learning in theatre.

E. Recognizes and describes effective strategies for teaching theatre effectively to students with diverse backgrounds and needs.

F. Understands considerations and procedures for developing and using instructional strategies that encourage active learning and are responsive to the strengths and needs of all students, including students with diverse backgrounds and needs.

G. Knows how to guide students with various skills and interests to explore avenues of self-discovery and self-expression through performance, dramatic play, design, play writing, technical production and other aspects of theatre.

H. Demonstrates knowledge of methods for developing and applying appropriate evaluation standards based on students’ abilities and experience, offering appropriate feedback to enhance students’ performance and teaching students to critique their own and others’ performances.

I. Demonstrates familiarity with multiple forms of assessment and how they can be used to evaluate and monitor student progress and to plan instruction in theatre.

J. Knows how to create, organize and manage a safe and supportive environment that encourages student learning, motivation, collaboration and positive forms of risk taking.

K. Demonstrates knowledge of safety practices relevant to creative expression and performance, including practices related to emotional well-being and the safe use of the voice and body.
Competency 015: The teacher understands developmentally appropriate skills, concepts and instructional strategies to promote students’ development of theatre concepts, knowledge and skills; enhance critical and creative thinking in theatre contexts; and foster appreciation of the arts.

The beginning teacher:

A. Demonstrates knowledge of students’ intellectual, social, emotional and physical development and the significance of developmental factors for theatre education in grades EC–12.

B. Understands how to foster student learning and creativity by offering opportunities to engage in developmentally appropriate forms of drama, including forms that are process-centered (e.g., creative drama, theatre in education) and production-centered (e.g., scenes, plays, musicals).

C. Uses knowledge of students’ characteristics (e.g., prior experiences, developmental level, interests) to select appropriate materials and strategies for promoting learning and skills acquisition related to producing and directing theatrical productions.

D. Knows how to provide students with developmentally appropriate opportunities to use movement and dialogue to portray characters and themes drawn from personal experience, heritage, literature, current events and history; to dramatize literary selections; and to create and improvise stories that include a beginning, a middle and an end.

E. Recognizes and describes developmentally appropriate instructional strategies that provide students with developmentally appropriate opportunities to learn and apply skills and concepts for technical theatre, directing, scheduling, budgeting, planning, promoting and managing theatrical productions (e.g., demonstrating responsibility, creative problem solving, critical thinking, artistic discipline in a variety of contexts).

F. Recognizes and describes developmentally appropriate instructional strategies for teaching students appropriate audience behavior, etiquette and safety for various types of theatrical performances and process drama experiences.

G. Demonstrates familiarity with a variety of developmentally appropriate instructional approaches, activities and resources (e.g., films, websites) to promote students’ ability to appreciate, understand and critically analyze theatre from different times, places and cultures.

H. Knows how to provide students with varied, developmentally appropriate learning experiences that promote their ability to analyze, evaluate, appreciate and construct meaning from theatre, film and television and other electronic media productions.

I. Knows how to provide students with developmentally appropriate opportunities to apply critical-thinking skills as they create and perform dramatic material.

NOTE: After clicking on a link, right click and select "Previous View" to go back to original text.
Competency 016: The teacher understands the role of theatre and theatre education in everyday life.

The beginning teacher:

A. Analyzes the benefits and relevance of theatre experiences for students’ academic and personal development (e.g., encouraging experiential exploration of content-area topics, facilitating creative problem solving, promoting self-knowledge, enhancing understanding of interpersonal relationships, improving self-confidence through performance, developing verbal and nonverbal communication skills).

B. Demonstrates knowledge of career and avocational opportunities in theatre and dramatic media, the skills and preparation required for these careers and avocations and ways to integrate awareness of careers and avocational opportunities into theatre education.

C. Demonstrates familiarity with theatrical resources, opportunities and experiences for students that are available outside the school.

D. Knows the training, skills, self-discipline and artistic discipline needed to pursue career and avocational opportunities in theatre and dramatic media.

E. Demonstrates knowledge of the characteristics, uses and benefits of various professional development resources and strategies for the theatre educator.
Approaches to Answering Multiple-Choice Questions

The purpose of this section is to describe multiple-choice question formats that you will typically see on the Theatre EC–12 test and to suggest possible ways to approach thinking about and answering them. These approaches are intended to supplement and complement familiar test-taking strategies with which you may already be comfortable and that work for you. Fundamentally, the most important component in assuring your success on the test is knowing the content described in the test framework. This content has been carefully selected to align with the knowledge required to begin a career as a professional theatre educator.

The multiple-choice questions on this test are designed to assess your knowledge of the content described in the test framework. In most cases, you are expected to demonstrate more than just your ability to recall factual information. You may be asked to think critically about the information, to analyze it, consider it carefully, compare it with other knowledge you have or make a judgment about it.

When you are ready to respond to a multiple-choice question, you must choose one of four answer options. Leave no questions unanswered. Questions for which you mark no answer or more than one answer are counted as incorrect. Your score will be determined by the number of questions for which you select the correct answer.

The Theatre EC–12 test is designed to include a total of 100 multiple-choice questions, out of which 80 are scored. The number of scored questions will not vary; however, the number of questions that are not scored may vary in the actual test. Your final scaled score will be based only on scored questions. The questions that are not scored are being pilot tested to collect information about how these questions will perform under actual testing conditions. These pilot questions are not identified on the test.

Question Formats

You may see the following types of multiple-choice questions on the test:

— Single Questions
— Clustered Questions

On the following pages, you will find descriptions of these commonly used question formats, along with suggested approaches for responding to each type.
Single Questions

The single-question format presents a direct question or an incomplete statement. It can also include a reading passage, graphic, table or a combination of these. Four answer options appear below the question.

The following question is an example of the single-question format. It tests knowledge of Theatre EC–12 Competency 002: The teacher demonstrates knowledge of acting methods and techniques.

Example

Which of the following describes an effective way for an actor to develop a character?

A. Determining the emotional changes that the character experiences from scene to scene
B. Listing the blocking choices the character makes throughout the play
C. Finding moments to increase the intensity of the performance as the play progresses
D. Choosing specific words and phrases to emphasize in each scene

Suggested Approach

Read the question carefully. Think about what it is asking and the context it is describing. Look at the answer options and consider which of them describes an effective way for an actor to develop a character. Eliminate any obviously wrong answers, select the correct answer choice and mark your answer.

Option A focuses on the emotional changes that the character experiences from scene to scene. By examining a character’s emotional changes throughout the play, an actor learns how his or her character responds to events and other people and is then able to better understand the character’s background, motivations and goals, which are essential to character development. This exercise will provide the actor with relevant information about the character that may not be stated explicitly in the script. Option A describes a response that is relevant to the topic of character development described in the question.

Option B presents the idea of listing the blocking choices the character makes throughout the play. Simply listing the character’s blocking choices, which are usually determined by the director, might provide some information about the character and his or her relationships to others, but without some supplemental information from the script, this exercise would not provide enough information on which to base one’s development of a character. Option B can be eliminated as the best response to this question.
Option C advocates finding moments to increase the intensity of the performance as the play progresses. This is a refinement more typical of specific moments in the performance and does not directly or deeply involve developing a character in the way option A does. In addition, continually increasing the intensity of a performance may not be appropriate for the portrayal of a given character. Option C can be eliminated as the best response to this question.

Option D suggests that an effective way for an actor to develop a character is to choose specific words and phrases to emphasize in each scene. Like option C, this approach is more relevant to the development of a performance than the development of a character. Since decisions about which words and phrases to emphasize are based on a complete knowledge of the character, they can be made only after the character has been developed. Option D can be eliminated as the best response to this question.

Of the four alternatives offered, determining the emotional changes that the character experiences from scene to scene is the most effective way for an actor to develop a character. Therefore, the correct response is option A.

Clustered Questions

Clustered questions are made up of a stimulus and two or more questions relating to the stimulus. The stimulus material can be a reading passage, graphic, table or any other information necessary to answer the questions that follow.

You can use several different approaches to respond to clustered questions. Some commonly used strategies are listed below.

Strategy 1
Skim the stimulus material to understand its purpose, its arrangement and/or its content. Then read the questions and refer again to the stimulus material to obtain the specific information you need to answer the questions.

Strategy 2
Read the questions before considering the stimulus material. The theory behind this strategy is that the content of the questions will help you identify the purpose of the stimulus material and locate the information you need to answer the questions.

Strategy 3
Use a combination of both strategies. Apply the “read the stimulus first” strategy with shorter, more familiar stimuli and the “read the questions first” strategy with longer, more complex or less familiar stimuli. You can experiment with the sample questions in this manual and then use the strategy with which you are most comfortable when you take the actual test.
Whether you read the stimulus before or after you read the questions, you should read it carefully and critically. You may want to note its important points to help you answer the questions.

As you consider questions set in educational contexts, try to enter into the identified teacher's frame of mind and use that teacher's point of view to answer the questions that accompany the stimulus. Be sure to consider the questions only in terms of the information provided in the stimulus — not in terms of your own experiences or individuals you may have known.

Example

First read the stimulus (a short list of story starters provided by the teacher).

Use the information below to answer the questions that follow.

A theatre teacher provides a fifth-grade class with two story starters.

- You loan a friend something that is valuable to you, and your friend loses it.
- You go to school on a weekday, but no one else has come.

Now you are prepared to respond to the first of the two questions associated with this stimulus. The first question tests knowledge of Theatre EC–12 Competency 015: The teacher understands developmentally appropriate skills, concepts and instructional strategies to promote students’ development of theatre concepts, knowledge and skills; enhance critical and creative thinking in theatre contexts; and foster appreciation of the arts.

1. The teacher divides the class into groups of four students. Each group selects one of the story starters above. Using the problem suggested by the story starter, the students work in their groups to work out a middle, a climax and an ending for their story. This activity most directly promotes students’ understanding of which of the following elements of drama?

   A. Theme
   B. Character development
   C. Conflict
   D. Plot structure

Suggested Approach

Consider carefully the information presented in the stimulus, then read and consider the question. The activity described in the question addresses one element of drama identified in the options more directly than the others.
Option A suggests that the activity addresses the dramatic element of theme. In drama, theme is the message of the work being performed. Although some of the groups may create stories with a particular message, the assignment does not ask students to develop a message based on the story starter. Option A is not the best response to this question.

Option B suggests that the activity addresses character development. Students will certainly include characters in the stories they create, but the assignment does not emphasize the study of characters and their motives and desires, which are the basic steps in character development. Option B can be eliminated as the best response to this question.

Option C suggests that the activity promotes student understanding of the dramatic element of conflict. In drama, conflict occurs during the middle part, or rising action, of a play, and conflict is the result of the complications and discoveries that lead to the climax of the story. The student groups are likely, therefore, to introduce conflict into their stories. The assignment, however, does not focus exclusively on conflict in the stories they create but on the larger dramatic structure. Option C is too narrow in scope to be the best response to this question.

Option D focuses on the dramatic element of plot structure. In particular, the assignment requires students to use one of the given beginnings to create a story with a middle, a climax, and an ending. These are the essential elements of plot structure in drama. Option D is the best response to this question.

Of the alternatives offered, the dramatic element of plot structure is most directly addressed by the activity described. Therefore, the correct response is option D.

Now you are ready to answer the next question. The second question measures Theatre EC–12 Competency 015: The teacher understands developmentally appropriate skills, concepts and instructional strategies to promote students’ development of theatre concepts, knowledge and skills; enhance critical and creative thinking in theatre contexts; and foster appreciation of the arts.

2. Compared to the first story starter, which of the following best identifies a unique challenge that students would need to confront when working out the second story starter?

A. Point of view
B. Plausibility
C. Tone
D. Setting

NOTE: After clicking on a link, right click and select "Previous View" to go back to original text.
Suggested Approach

Refer again to the stimulus and consider carefully the information presented in it, paying particular attention this time to the first and second story starters. Consider the similar and different challenges they would pose for the students. One of the options will identify a challenge in developing the second story starter that would not be present, or as pronounced, when developing the first.

Option A suggests that point of view is a challenge unique to the second story starter. Choices and problems involving characters’ points of view will differ between the two story starters, but both story starters will involve such choices and problems. Option A, point of view, is not a challenge unique to the second story starter.

Option B suggests that plausibility is a challenge unique to the second story starter. The first story starter suggests a common, real-world situation while the second suggests an unlikely, perhaps absurd or frightening, scenario. The implausibility of the second story starter will require the students to create a context that explains the situation, or they may choose to embrace the implausibility by, for example, creating a farce. Option B, plausibility, is therefore a challenge unique to the second story starter.

Option C suggests that tone is a challenge unique to the second story starter. As with option A, point of view, choices and considerations involved with tone are inherent in both story starters. Option C, tone, is not a challenge unique to the second story starter.

Option D suggests that setting is a challenge unique to the second story starter. In fact, setting presents challenges in both story starters. Groups of students working with the first story starter will be challenged to invent a setting for the scenario. While students working with the second story starter are provided with a basic setting, they will still be challenged to make this setting—an empty school on a weekday—plausible. Option D, setting, is therefore not a challenge unique to only the second story starter.

Of the options presented, the most uniquely challenging in regard to the second story starter is plausibility. The correct response is option B.
Multiple-Choice Practice Questions

This section presents some sample test questions for you to review as part of your preparation for the test. To demonstrate how each competency may be assessed, each sample question is accompanied by the competency that it measures. While studying, you may wish to read the competency before and after you consider each sample question. Please note that the competency statements do not appear on the actual test.

For each sample test question, there is a correct answer and a rationale for each answer option. Please note that the sample questions are not necessarily presented in competency order.

The sample questions are included to illustrate the formats and types of questions you will see on the test; however, your performance on the sample questions should not be viewed as a predictor of your performance on the actual test.

COMPETENCY 001

1. Which of the following improvisation activities would be most useful for developing actors’ focus as an ensemble?

   A. Reacting individually to different sounds
   B. Building a moving human sculpture
   C. Dividing into pairs to invent two-character scenes
   D. Recreating private everyday actions accurately

Answer and Rationale

COMPETENCY 001

2. In the standard play format used in the United States, names of characters who are speaking are distinguished from dialogue through the use of

   A. italics.
   B. boldface.
   C. all caps.
   D. parentheses.

Answer and Rationale
COMPETENCY 002

3. Which of the following questions is most directly related to the work of an actor using sense memory?
   A. What are some of the most historically significant productions of the play?
   B. What significant experiences from my own life are relevant to the play?
   C. What prevents the characters in the play from achieving their objectives?
   D. What information does the play provide about my character’s experiences before the play begins?

Answer and Rationale

COMPETENCY 005

4. Which of the following formats is best suited to an environmental staging of a production?
   A. Proscenium
   B. Black box
   C. Thrust
   D. Arena

Answer and Rationale
Use the excerpt below from Eugene O’Neill’s note “General Scene of the Trilogy” from “Mourning Becomes Electra” to answer the question that follows.

“The action of the trilogy ... takes place in or immediately outside the Mannon residence, on the outskirts of one of the smaller New England seaport towns....

“The house is placed back on a slight rise of ground about three hundred feet from the street. It is a large building of the Greek temple type... A white wooden portico with six tall columns contrasts with the wall of the house proper which is of gray cut stone. There are five windows on the upper floor and four on the ground floor, with the main entrance in the middle, a doorway with squared transom and sidelights flanked by intermediate columns. The window shutters are painted a dark green. Before the doorway a flight of four steps leads from the ground to the portico.

“The three plays take place in either spring or summer of the years 1865–1866.”

5. Based on the text above, which of the following set designs would best fit O’Neill’s vision for his trilogy?

A. A minimalist set with a one-dimensional outline of a house
B. An abstract representation of a mansion and its grounds
C. A realistic representation of a nineteenth-century northeastern mansion
D. A realistic representation of a nineteenth-century southern mansion

Answer and Rationale
6. The primary feature of the set for Mary Zimmerman’s “Metamorphoses” is a pool of water. This pool is central to all of the stories told in the play — at times it is a bath, a swimming pool or even the sea — and is the element around which the rest of the play’s setting is designed. Which of the following scenic design terms best describes the pool?

A. Platform
B. Cyclorama
C. Prop
D. Set piece

   A. Literature
   B. Psychology
   C. Art history
   D. Anthropology

Answer and Rationale
Use the information below to answer the questions that follow.

A high school theatre teacher is preparing a unit on performance art in contemporary theatre. The goal is to have the class learn about performance art, review some examples of artists who have successfully used the techniques of performance art and then create individual performance pieces to present to the school. Most of the students in the class are unfamiliar with performance art, so the teacher wants to introduce them to the following basic concepts of performance art.

- The difference between performance art and traditional theatre
- The presence or absence of the performer’s body
- Interactions between performer and audience
- Use of different media within a work of performance

21. The teacher has the students read Anna Deavere Smith’s performance piece “Fires in the Mirror: Crown Heights, Brooklyn, and Other Identities” as an example of performance art. Which of the following is the most effective way to use technology to encourage student engagement with the assignment?

A. Having students answer questions posted on the class Web page after reading the piece
B. Asking students to find images on the Web that reflect the themes of the piece and then use those images to create a PowerPoint® presentation
C. Posting video clips of Smith’s performance on the class Web page and having students use the class discussion board to talk about her interpretation of the script
D. Watching a video of the performance in class and having students write reviews of Smith’s character development

22. At the end of the unit, the teacher asks each student to create an individual performance piece. Which of the following assignments allows students from diverse backgrounds to engage most effectively with this task?

A. Giving each student the transcript of an interview with a famous person and having the student create a performance piece based on that interview
B. Assigning each student a faculty member to interview and then having the student use the interview as the basis of the performance piece
C. Asking each student to interview family members and then use the interviews as the basis of the performance piece
D. Giving each student a series of articles about a recent event that happened in town and having the student use those articles as the basis of the performance piece

A. It frequently deals with issues of gender in the United States
B. It is known for criticizing British society using a variety of theatrical styles
C. It combines choreography and poetry into a unique genre called choreopoem
D. It brought African American theatre to mainstream Broadway audiences

Answer and Rationale

Read the excerpt below from “Hamlet,” by William Shakespeare, in which Hamlet gives advice to a group of actors; then answer the question that follows.

Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue. But if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the town-crier had spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus, but use all gently; for in the very torrent, tempest, and, as I may say, the whirlwind of your passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance that may give it smoothness. O, it offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings, who, for the most part, are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb shows and noise.

<td>001</td>
<td>C</td>
<td>Option C is correct. In standard United States play format, character names appear above corresponding dialogue in all caps. Options A, B and D are incorrect. Italics (option A) and boldface (option B) are sometimes used for emphasis, and parentheses (option D) generally indicate stage directions.</td>

<td>B</td>
<td>Option B is correct because sense memory broadly consists of an actor using personal experience to enrich the portrayal of a character. Options A, C and D are incorrect. Option C relates to an actor’s identification of obstacles, while option D refers to a character’s back story. Option A relates to the work of a dramaturge.</td>

<td>B</td>
<td>Option B is correct because a black-box theatre is a format-less space that can be configured to any desired staging/seating arrangement. Environmental staging can best be achieved in a black-box format because the staging options are not limited by the placement of a stage and seating. Options A, C and D are incorrect because proscenium, thrust and arena formats have specific, permanent placements of staging areas and audience seating that cannot be easily shifted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>005</td>
<td>C</td>
<td>Option C is correct. The level of detail in O’Neill’s description of the setting indicates a desire for realism. In addition, the time period of the play (1865–1866) is the nineteenth century, and O’Neill indicates that his setting is in the northeastern part of the United States (“on the outskirts of one of the smaller New England seaport towns”). Option A is incorrect because O’Neill’s detailed description of the setting is the opposite of minimalism. Option B is incorrect because an abstract representation of the setting would not match the level of detail set forth in the description. Option D is not the correct answer because, while it contains the appropriate time period, the setting for the play is not the South, but New England.</td>

In this example, the teacher provides support to the students who are first learning about performance art by introducing them to the basic elements of performance art and then building upon these basic concepts to reach the more complex concept of how they can be combined into a specific performance. Option B is incorrect because spaced repetition is a learning technique that utilizes increasing intervals of time between reviews of previously learned material. Option C is incorrect because pedagogy of the oppressed refers to educator Paulo Freire’s theory that proposes a new relationship between teachers and students, where students are viewed as co-creators of their learning. Option D is incorrect because, while direct instruction — the teaching of skills or concepts through lecture or demonstration — may involve the technique of introducing a particularly complex concept through scaffolding, it refers only to a method of delivering information to students rather than to a technique for ensuring understanding of the material.</td>

<td>A</td>
<td>Option A is correct. Maria Irene Fornés is a Cuban American writer whose best-known plays, such as “Fefu and Her Friends” (1977) and “Mud” (1983), deal with issues of gender. Her plays also frequently take place in the United States. Options B, C and D are incorrect because they would be appropriate for describing other female playwrights — for example, Caryl Churchill (option B), the United States playwright Ntozake Shange (option C) and Lorrainne Hansberry (option D).</td>

<td>C</td>
<td>Option C is correct. In his speech, Hamlet cautions the actors not to “saw the air too much with your hand” or “split the ears of the groundlings” (the audience standing in the pit directly in front of the stage). This implies that actors tended to yell and gesticulate heavily when “in the very torrent” of playing an intense scene. Options A, B and D are incorrect because they are based on possible misunderstandings of Hamlet’s speech.</td>
