ACGM Description:

English 2324

Intensive study and practice in writing processes, from invention and research to drafting, revising, and editing, both individually and collaboratively. Emphasis on research papers for higher-level analysis, with MLA and APA guidelines and models and use of literature and current events to stimulate creative and thought-provoking expositions ranging from 800-2000 words in length.

NOTE: English 2323 is a prerequisite for English 2324 and higher level literature classes.

Lecture Hours: 3 Hours        Lab Hours: 0        Semester Credit Hours: 3

Introduction and Purpose:

This course will provide the opportunity for the student to examine the great works of English literature from its inception through the eighteenth century.

Instruction Materials:

Huxley, Aldous. Brave New World.

A. Student Learning Objectives: Upon completion of this course, the student should be able to 1) demonstrate knowledge of individual and collaborative writing processes; 2) develop ideas with appropriate support and attribution; 3) compose in a style appropriate to audience and purpose; 4) read, reflect, and respond critically to a variety of texts; and 5) use edited American English in academic essays.

B. At the end of the course, the student should also be able to 1) identify major literary trends between the fifth and eighteenth century, 2) compare the changing ideas and values of particular eras, 3) analyze the characteristic of a variety of literary genres, 4) discern the various influences unique to each literary period, 5) write a 500-2000 word analysis of various influences pertaining the major genres, 6) demonstrate proficiency in writing and critical thinking skills, 7) communicate orally in a clear and coherent manner, 8) display computer literacy in composing and researching projects, and 9) pass standard writing and grammatical examinations pertaining to the material covered during each unit.

C. The students’ success in completing these objectives will be measured using a set of examinations and assignments described in detail by the instructor at the beginning of every lesson.

D. Students will concentrate upon research techniques by writing multi-source research papers according to APA and MLA guidelines.

E. Students will analyze and incorporate literary conventions such as plot, setting, theme, irony, simile, metaphor, allusion, imagery, contrast, symbolism, juxtaposition, characterization, fate, point of view, paradox, humor, satire, flashback, foreshadowing, diction, and dialect.

F. Students will analyze literary works thematically: coming of age, loss and redemption, loss and betrayal, loss and rebirth, death and rebirth, quest for truth, quest for love, and quest for acceptance.

G. Students will analyze and employ literary works according to tone: loss, hopelessness, joy, struggle, determination, heroism, discovery, suspense, adventure, hypocrisy.
H. By the end of this semester, students will have written a minimum of eighteen compositions, roughly half literary analysis of novels and short works, and the other half based upon expository topics from current events.

I. By the end of the semester, students will have tested over approximately 1000 SAT vocabulary words.

Annual Assessment Plan will be implemented each year to review course.
