

MKTG 3321 – Marketing

Course Description/Overview

This course will cover the fundamentals of marketing in the modern economic system. This course is a prerequisite for all other marketing courses except MKT 3322 (consumer behavior), which may be taken concurrently.

"Marketing requires separate work, and a distinct set of activities. But, it is a central dimension of the entire business. It is the whole business seen from the point of its final result, that is, from the customer's point of view. Concern and responsibility for marketing must permeate all areas of the enterprise."

People often think about "marketing" strictly as advertising - a highly visible activity by which organizations try to persuade customers to buy products and services. However, marketing is much more than advertising alone; even the most skillful marketer cannot make customers buy things that they don't want. Rather, marketing involves: (1) identifying customer needs, (2) satisfying these needs with the right product and/or service, (3) assuring availability to customers through the best distribution channels, (4) using promotional activities in ways that motivate purchase as effectively as possible, and (5) choosing a suitable price to boost the firm's profitability while also maintaining customer satisfaction. These decisions – product, distribution, promotion, and price – comprise the marketing mix. Together with a rigorous analysis of the customers, competitors, and the overall business environment, they are the key activities of marketing management, and they are crucial ones: failure to find the right combination of the "mix" may result in product (or service) failure. In turn, that means loss of revenue, loss of jobs, and economic inefficiency. – Peter Drucker

Course Objectives

Course Objectives:

This course provides a decision-oriented overview of marketing management in modern organizations. The most basic objectives of the course are to provide you with a broad introduction to marketing concepts, the role of marketing in society and in the firm, and the various factors that influence marketing decision making. Like other introductory survey courses, you will be exposed to and expected to learn the "language of marketing" (that is, terms, concepts, and frameworks) used by practicing marketing managers. However, it is also expected that by the end of the course, you will have a solid understanding of the major decision areas under marketing responsibility, the basic interrelationships of those decision areas, and an appreciation of how to apply key frameworks and tools for analyzing customers, competition, and marketing strengths and weaknesses. The course should help you to develop insight into the creative selection of target markets and blending decisions related to product, price, promotion, and place (i.e., the marketing mix) to meet the needs of a target market. These objectives can only be achieved through a joint effort: I will work to stimulate your interest and learning in these areas, but you will be expected to display initiative and a program of self-study as well. In that sense, a complementary objective of the course is to provide you with an environment that will encourage and reward your own intellectual effort while simultaneously maintaining rigorous standards that identify those who are motivated to pursue excellence in their own educational preparation for a business career.

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Define marketing and describe a marketer's role in creating, communicating, and delivering value.
2. Explain each of the four elements of the marketing mix.
3. Define marketing strategy and strategic planning.
4. Summarize the major external factors that influence the marketing environment.
5. Organize the five steps of the marketing research process.
6. Explain the consumer decision-making process.
7. Describe the product life cycle.
8. Explain segmentation, targeting, and positioning (STP).
9. Describe the elements of the promotion mix.
10. Explain how logistics and supply chains add value to products and services.

Assessment Methods

Learning outcomes will be assessed through exams, homework assignments, and video cases throughout the semester.

Course Textbook and Required Readings

You can find the book at all the usual places, including the ASU Bookstore. If you click on any of the assignments in Blackboard, you will be redirected to the McGraw-Hill (publisher of your book) server, where you can register for the Connect platform associated with the course. There you can also get free trial access to the electronic book and the Connect resources for a limited time. (This applies to the very first time you click on an assignment in BB. After you register with McGraw-Hill, subsequent clicks on an item listed under the Connect tab will take you to the assignment for each chapter in the text.)

Kerin, Roger. Marketing: The Core, 9th edition
Connect w/ebook. If you wish to purchase the loose-leaf or hard copy, please feel free, but is not required. However, connect access is required as this is where your assignments will be located. With connect access, you will have access to the ebook.

ISBN#: 9781264209286

Your time during the course will be allocated among a set of interrelated activities:

- Independent reading of the textbook and preparation for tests
- Video Cases
- SmartBook Assignments for each chapter

- Exams

The specific assignments for each class period are in a course schedule included at the bottom of this document.

Grading Policies

Grades and What's Expected

Course grades will be based on a weighted composite of the following:

Exam 1	100
Exam 2	100
Exam 3	100
Exam 4	100
Exam 5	100
SmartBook assignments (4@50)	200
Video Cases (5@20pts)	100
Bonus – SmartBook (17-18)	25
Bonus – Video Case #6	25

TOTAL 850

(The lowest exam score will be dropped. In addition, two of the assignments are listed as bonuses. Therefore, the base for computing your semester average will then be 700 points.)

Letter grades will be assigned such that a student will receive:

A = (90% and above)

B = (80 –89%)

C = (70 –79%)

D = (60 – 69%)

F =(59% and below)

Exams (1-5)

The tests during the term are in an objective -test format. The tests will consist of multiple-choice questions given in the traditional format.

The tests during the term will generally involve about 50 - 100 multiple-choice questions, and they will sample about evenly from both the general concepts and the details presented in the text and in class.

Please keep in mind that being prepared and taking the tests during the allocated times is your responsibility. The tests are on the schedule, and I urge you to mark them on your calendar now. Missing a scheduled test without approval will result in a zero for that test.

Make-Up Exams

If you miss an exam, the missed exam will count as your lowest Exam score and will be dropped, as noted above.

Graded Assignments ("Homework")

SmartBook – These are a total of five SmartBook assignments for this course. The first four are mandatory, with the fifth (over chapters 17 & 18) being a bonus. Each of these assignments is listed on the Class Schedule and are due on or before the dates listed at midnight (central time). Each assignment is worth 50 points. Late submissions will not be accepted for any reason. Please do not ask if you can submit these assignments late. Your grade will be automatically saved on Blackboard on the date of each assignment as these are submitted electronically.

Video Cases – There are a total of six video case assignments for this course. The first five are mandatory, with the sixth being a bonus. Each of these assignments is listed on the Class Schedule and are due on or before the dates listed at midnight (central time). Each assignment is worth 20 points. Points will be deducted for late submissions (10% for each day).

Online Responsibility

This class is asynchronous, meaning you do not have to be online at a certain time. There are readings that you will have to complete to be able to adequately participate in individual assignments. In order to complete this course successfully, you do have to participate in all course activities. Students are expected to engage in course activities and submit work by due dates and times (central time). The hope is that students will make substantive contributions that reflect an integration of assigned materials and any outside reading as appropriate. For planning purposes, this class will probably require a minimum of 6-9 study hours per week on average.

I will be glad to talk with you about any aspect of the course – or for that matter, anything that is on your mind. Please let me know if I can be of help. Please feel free to call or email if you have questions. Please leave a message (including a number where I can return your call) if you call, and I do not answer. You can also text me at (325) 277-5035. If a situation arises where you cannot reach me and leaving a message is not adequate, please call the Office Coordinator at 942-2383.

Response Time

My goal is to get back to you as soon as possible if you have questions or need assistance. A delay of more than 24 hours is unreasonable in my opinion, except on weekends! If something weird happens and you do not hear from me, please let the Office Coordinator know at 325-942-2383.
