

William Mitchell
Student Research Assistant

William Mitchell is a native of Holliday, Texas and is currently an undergraduate student of Government at Angelo State University (ASU). He is also the Secretary of the ASU Honors program. William will graduate in May 2009. William is working with San Angelo, Texas Community Development staff to design a citizen survey to identify the housing needs for low-to-moderate income residents of San Angelo. Upon graduation William will attend the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University where he will pursue a master's degree in Public Service and Administration.

Testimonial on CDI experience:

Community Development Initiatives has provided an opportunity to take concepts from the classroom and apply them in the real world. CDI promotes a positive environment where its members can exchange ideas and constructive feedback across its many projects. I have been developing a needs survey for the City of San Angelo to assist in the renewal of federal grants. Through this project, I have been able to gain valuable experience through hands-on work in a city office.
