

Nyati Conservation Corps

Nyati Conservation Corps (NCC) provides the unique opportunity for leaders of tomorrow to experience first-hand, wildlife management in Africa. This program is similar to an exchange program where the intern lives with the property owner's/manager's family. Each intern will be involved in the everyday activities on the property. Examples of activities are game counts, game capture, monitoring the breeding of native animals, checking the fencing of property boundaries and special breeding pens, participating in game auctions, general maintenance, etc. Students will gain a better understanding of the issues involved in important topics like conservation on a global scale. They will develop a more defined picture of where they fit in and how they can make a difference. NCC offers an exciting in-depth educational opportunity, taking students behind-the-scenes in the wilds of Southern Africa. Upon the student's arrival home, he/she will be able to share their African experiences with fellow Americans and help increase awareness about the issues involved in wildlife management.

NCC recognizes the great value in experiential education and prides itself on providing this wonderful opportunity. Learning how to apply what you have studied in the classroom is crucial to a student's development. The hands-on training, in combination with the exciting cultural experience from this program enables the individual to "stand out" among other resumes in the wildlife industry. NCC interns will have a strong portfolio with which to market themselves to employers and graduate schools.

We are now accepting applications for our summer 2013 program.
