MKTG 3321 - Marketing

Course Description/Overview

This course will cover the fundamentals of marketing in the modern economic system. This course is a prerequisite for all other marketing courses except MKT 3322 (consumer behavior), which may be taken concurrently.

“Marketing requires separate work, and a distinct set of activities. But, it is a central dimension of the entire business. It is the whole business seen from the point of its final result, that is, from the customer’s point of view. Concern and responsibility for marketing must permeate all areas of the enterprise.”

People often think about “marketing” strictly as advertising - a highly visible activity by which organizations try to persuade customers to buy products and services. However, marketing is much more than advertising alone; even the most skillful marketer cannot make customers buy things that they don't want. Rather, marketing involves: (1) identifying customer needs, (2) satisfying these needs with the right product and/or service, (3) assuring availability to customers through the best distribution channels, (4) using promotional activities in ways that motivate purchase as effectively as possible, and (5) choosing a suitable price to boost the firm’s profitability while also maintaining customer satisfaction. These decisions – product, distribution, promotion, and price – comprise the marketing mix. Together with a rigorous analysis of the customers, competitors, and the overall business environment, they are the key activities of marketing management, and they are crucial ones: failure to find the right combination of the “mix” may result in product (or service) failure. In turn, that means loss of revenue, loss of jobs, and economic inefficiency. – Peter Drucker

Course Objectives

Learning Objectives:

This course provides a decision-oriented overview of marketing management in modern organizations. The most basic objectives of the course are to provide you with a broad introduction to marketing concepts, the role of marketing in society and in the firm, and the various factors that influence marketing decision making. Like other introductory survey courses, you will be exposed to and expected to learn the “language of marketing” (that is, terms, concepts, and frameworks) used by practicing marketing managers. However, it is also expected that by the end of the course you will have a solid understanding of the major decision areas under marketing responsibility, the basic interrelationships of those decisions areas, and an appreciation to how to apply key frameworks and tools for analyzing customers, competition, and marketing strengths and weaknesses. The course should help you to develop insight about the creative selection of target markets and blending decisions related to product, price, promotion, and place (i.e., the marketing mix) to meet the needs of a target market. These objectives can only be achieved through a joint effort: I will work to stimulate your interest and learning in these areas, but you will be expected to display initiative and a program of self-study as well. In that sense, a complementary objective of the course is to provide you with an environment that will encourage and reward your own intellectual effort, while simultaneously maintaining rigorous standards that identify those who are motivated to pursue excellence in their own educational preparation for a business career.

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to...

1. Define marketing and describe a marketer’s role in creating, communicating, and delivering value.
2. Explain each of the four elements of the marketing mix.
3. Define marketing strategy and strategic planning.
4. Summarize the major external factors that influence the marketing environment.
5. Organize the five steps of the marketing research process.
6. Explain the consumer decision-making process.
7. Describe the product life cycle.
8. Explain segmentation, targeting, and positioning (STP).
9. Describe the elements of the promotion mix.
10. Explain how logistics and supply chains add value to products and services.

These are the 10 most important learning objectives of MKT 3321.

Assessment Methods

Twenty imbedded questions on the Comprehensive Final Exam will assess the learning objectives above. The goal is for the class to average 80 percent (or better) correct answers on these 20 questions.

Course Textbook and Required Readings

You can find the book at all the usual places including the ASU Bookstore. It is available online from several sources. If you click on any of the assignments under the Connect tab on Blackboard, you will be redirected to the McGraw-Hill (publisher of your book) server where you can register for the Connect platform associated with the course. There you can also get a free trial access to the electronic book and the Connect resources for a limited time. You can also purchase the text directly from McGraw-Hill on this website. (This applies to the very first time you click on an assignment in Bb. After you register with McGraw-Hill, subsequent clicks on an item listed under the Connect tab will take you to the assignment for each chapter in the text.)

Kerin, Roger. Marketing: The Core, 7th edition, 2018 copyright. Connect w/ebook. If you wish to purchase the loose-leaf or hard copy, please feel free, but is not required. However, connect access is required as this is where your assignments will be located. With connect access, you will have access to the ebook.

ISBN#: 9781259899317

Your time during the course will be allocated among a set of interrelated activities:
- independent reading of the textbook and preparation for tests
- lectures and class discussions
- in-class group activities
- class discussion of readings and assignments

The specific assignments for each class period are in a course schedule published on Blackboard.
Grading Policies

Grades and What’s Expected

Course grades will be based on a weighted composite of the following:

- Exam 1: 100
- Exam 2: 100
- Exam 3: 100
- Exam 4: 100
- Exam 5: 100
- Connect (LS) assignments: 100
- Group Activities (8@25pts): 200

TOTAL: 800

(The lowest exam score will be dropped. In addition, two of the group activity grades will be counted as “attendance bonuses”. Therefore, the base for computing your semester average will then be 650 points.)

Letter grades will be assigned such that a student will receive:
- A: (90% and above)
- B: (80 – 89%)
- C: (70 – 79%)
- D: (60 – 69%)
- F: (59% and below)

Exams (1-5)

The tests during the term are in an objective-test format. The tests will consist of multiple-choice questions given in the traditional format (given in the classroom on the dates specified on the Class Schedule). SCANTRON answer forms will be needed for the exams.

The tests during the term will generally involve about 50 - 100 multiple-choice questions and they will sample about evenly from both the general concepts and the details presented in the text and in class.

Please keep in mind that being prepared and taking the tests during the allocated times is your responsibility. The tests are on the schedule and I urge you to mark them on your calendar now. Missing a scheduled test without approval will result in a zero for that test. Feedback will be provided for each test, typically on the first class day following each exam. However, you are welcome to schedule a time to review your test in more detail if you wish. I will be pleased to go over your test with you personally if you have questions or concerns that are not discussed in the review of the exam.
Make-Up Exams
If you miss an exam, the missed exam will count as your lowest Exam score and will be dropped as noted above.

I will make exceptions for students on official University business (such as participating in an away football game). Generally, this exception will involve those students taking the exam early.

Graded Assignments (“Homework”)

There are a total of 18 graded assignment using McGraw-Hill Connect. Each of these assignments is listed on the Class Schedule and due on or before the dates assigned at midnight. Each assignment is worth six points. Late submissions will not be accepted for any reason. Please do not ask if you can submit these assignments late. Your grade will be automatically saved on Blackboard on the date of each assignment as these are submitted electronically. I will drop the lowest two assignments, so the maximum you can earn is 96 points. You can earn the “other” 4 points by simply signing up and registering for this class on the Connect (McGraw-Hill) platform by the deadline —Friday, February 1st.

Class Participation

Most class sessions will include a short lecture and group activity. Lectures and activities will be related to the assigned readings – and devoted to presentation and discussion of concepts, frameworks, and techniques useful for assessing marketing opportunities and developing marketing programs. “Participation” will be assessed using the group activities. Group activities will be done in class; no outside class time will be necessary. There will be no make-ups for the eight scheduled, in-class group activities. However, two activity scores will not be counted in the base for your final grade. Instead, these two scores will be extra points added to your grade, sort of like an “attendance bonus”.

Class Attendance

Class attendance is important, strongly encouraged, and expected. Class lectures and discussions will supplement text materials and will be included as an aspect of the tests. Further, you are responsible for everything that is discussed in class, taken up in class, or handed out in class. I will generally hand out materials only once. If you miss a class and wish me to consider excusing the absence, please see me in person after class on the day(s) following the absence. And remember, to qualify this must occur on the next class date after the absence(s). Otherwise, it will not be “excused”. There is always an “excuse” for missing class. Some are legitimate such as illness. Some are understandable such as getting to spend a long weekend at a fantastic resort. And others are, well……not. My policy regarding attendance is simple; it is based on rewarding “good” behavior and failing to reward “bad” behavior. Therefore, if you are absent a total of three times or less this semester, you will qualify the grade earned on the exams and assignments and for any curve that is given at the end of course. If you miss four or more classes, then you do not qualify for any curve that might be given at the end of the term.

What I am demanding from you in this class is a pattern of responsible involvement in the course and in your own learning experience. Most jobs in the real world require you to be at work, to be there on time, and to stay until the work is complete. I require this of you now. If you do not agree with my standards, then you should take this course with someone else.

The class provides an opportunity for you to develop abilities in communicating with others about your ideas and approaches for dealing with marketing management problems. This is important. After graduation you will spend much of your professional career doing just that, regardless of the specific career area you pursue. The potential of this opportunity is only fully realized if you make meaningful contributions to the course in class discussions and debate. In general, prepared and constructive participation in class is expected. I recognize that some students simply do not like to speak out in class, and that others are quick to take all the “air time” that is available. I don’t want to penalize someone who in general is less inclined to talk in class. If you don’t feel comfortable speaking in class, visit with me and I will try to help you in this regard.

I look forward to the opportunity to get to know you during the term. I will be glad to talk with you about any aspect of the course – or for that matter anything that is on your mind. Please let me know if I can be of help. Although I will not hold regular office hours, I will be more than happy to set up a one-on-one meeting with you. I will also be glad to talk with you before or after classes as our schedules permit.

Please feel free to call or email if you have a question. Please leave a message (including a number where I can return your call) if you call and I do not answer. You can also text me at (325) 277-5035. If a situation arises where you can’t reach me and leaving a message is not adequate, please call Zan Talamantez at 942-2383.

Response Time
My goal is to get back to you as soon as possible if you have questions or need assistance. A delay of more than 24 hours is unreasonable in my opinion, except on weekends! If something weird happens and you do not hear from me, please let the Office Coordinator know. Her name and number follows. Alexandra Zan Talamantez, 325-942-2383, atalamantez5@angelo.edu

Student absence for religious holidays

As stated in the Angelo State University Operating Policy and Procedures (OP 10.19 Student Absence for Observance of Religious Holy Day), a student who intends to miss class to observe a religious holy day should make that intention known in writing to the instructor prior to the absence. A student who is absent from classes for the observance of a religious holy day shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment scheduled for that day within a reasonable time after the absence.

Course Drop

To view information about how to drop this course or to calculate important dates relevant to dropping this course, you can visit http://www.angelo.edu/services/registrars_office/course_drop_provisions.php.

Incomplete as a Course grade

As stated in the Angelo State University Operating Policy and Procedure (OP 10.11 Grading Procedures), the grade "I" is given when the student is unable to complete the course because of illness or personal misfortune. For undergraduates, an "I" that is not removed before the end of the next long semester automatically becomes an "F". A graduate student will be allowed one year to remove a grade of "I" before it automatically becomes an "F". To graduate from ASU, a student must complete all "Is".

Grade Appeal Process

As stated in the Angelo State University Operating Policy and Procedures (OP 10.03 Student Grade Grievances), a student who believes that he or she has not been held to appropriate academic standards as outlined in the class syllabus, has experienced inequitable evaluation procedures, or inappropriate grading practices, may appeal the final grade given in the course. The burden of proof is upon the student to demonstrate the appropriateness of the appeal. A student with a complaint about a grade is encouraged to first discuss the matter with the instructor. For complete details, including the responsibilities of the parties involved in the grade appeal process and the number of days allowed for completing the steps in the process, see Operating Procedure 10.03 at: http://www.angelo.edu/content/files/14196-op-1003-grade-grievance.
