Course Philosophy and Additional Skills Developed: This class and the assignments have been developed to engage students in discussion, small group work, and other activities to actively engage your participation. Therefore, the following ground rules are applied to the course:

1. Active participation - Everyone – including the students and the professor, will actively participate in the class on a daily basis. A portion of your course grade (as much as one full letter grade) depends on your active involvement in the course, and your group contributions will be measured by your peers on the group project.
2. Cooperation and Mutual Respect - As leaders, we must learn to create an atmosphere of trust in our work teams. This means appreciating the unique set of experiences, beliefs and values each member brings to class. Another important element of trust and respect is listening. Good leaders are notable for the ability to listen to others and ask meaningful questions. Respectful turn-taking in both sharing and listening is expected.

3. Creativity – You will be challenged to create new thought. When we think through something for the first time, we are creating our logic, purposes and reasons for thinking. We are making new assumptions. We are forming new concepts. We are asking new questions. We are making new inferences. We are working out a problem in a direction that is new to us.

4. Problem-solving – You will be required to not only identify problems but also to generate solutions and make recommendations based on a logical and thorough analysis of the alternatives.

5. Individual accountability – All members of the class will be held responsible for their own learning as well as the learning within their individual project teams. No member of any team should feel that he/she is doing more or less than an equal share of the project. Therefore, each team will be given the opportunity to sanction non-contributing team members through the following process: 1) verbal warning by the group with the professor as witness; 2) written warning by the team with a copy submitted to the professor; and 3) firing by the team by unanimous vote and sufficient written documentation provided to the professor.
