SEC 6302 Introduction to Security Studies

Course Description/Overview

Introduction

Security, along with food and shelter, is the primary need of a human being. In the world of economic scarcities, the craving for security in many cases led to further insecurities. Peace has always been in stake in our volatile world full of struggle for survival. After the collapse of the Soviet Union, the history, as it seemed, took a peaceful turn. Bipolar rivalry was over making the end of the seemingly inevitable nuclear holocaust threat. Common values, such as human rights, free market economy and sovereignty started spreading beyond the state borders decreasing the violence between the countries. At first glance, we are living now in a more peaceful world than ever before, but are we more secure...?

The course "Introduction to Security Studies" introduces key concepts and approaches in the study of security. It covers the history, evolution, development and future of international security. During the course the students will learn about many of the theoretical approaches and debates relating to world politics starting from the ancient times to modern settings, national and international security institutions, and regional security complexes. The course deals with many of the theoretical works in the field as well as numerous case studies that concern national security issues that impact current world politics and international security. The studies will also include the origination and causes of wars, role of force in international relations, deterrence and coercion (in both theory and practice), diplomacy and international dynamics, and current threats to national and global security, such as terrorism.

Course Description

The main aim of the course is to create within the group of the students a better-structured vision and improved understanding of national and international security issues. We will embark on our journey in the field of security studies with the key conceptual and theoretical debates. The course will make the students able to interpret key texts from the history of international politics and to grasp the basic security concepts, such as deterrence, pre-emptive/preventive strike, bipolarity, WMD, MAD, security regimes, societal security and many more.

Program/Student Learning Outcomes (PLO/SLO)

Communication

Students will demonstrate a mastery of communication skills with the professor and with fellow classmates, through graded, guided discussions, and written skills through a mastery of written assignments, as applied to global and regional knowledge necessary to attain skills in the field of security studies.

Cultural Appreciation

Students will demonstrate, comprehend, and practice, in the context of the global and regional geopolitical environment, cultural appreciation regarding how individuals and diverse societies/nation States interact with one another, and gain a thorough, demonstrated knowledge of the skills necessary to work effectively in a diverse international environment, and show this ability through the successful completion of active, graded discussions, and written assignments.

Advanced Knowledge and Critical Thinking

Students will demonstrate an ability to apply advanced knowledge and critical thinking to national and international security as it applies to both issues and world regions, and show this ability through the successful completion of active, graded discussions, and written assignments.

Grading Policies

During the course the students are expected to fully participate in discussions on the above themes via answering week-specific questions and preparing individual Power-point presentations. Effectiveness of comprehension of the course material will be evaluated by the quality of written assignments (a first and a final essay), participation in discussions, and presentations.

Grading of the course consists of the following components:
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Assignment</th>
<th>Percent of Grade</th>
<th>Due</th>
<th>Note</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Engaged participation (discussion)</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>Weekly</td>
<td>The instructor will select a weekly discussion from the list of 3-4 questions, which students are expected to cover using the Blackboard tool during their discussions. The length of the primary posting should be approximately 300 words. There are no discussion questions for the weeks with powerpoint presentations, first essay exam, and final essay exam.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Individual powerpoint presentations</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>Sunday of Lesson 2 by 2100 hrs CST.</td>
<td>Each student is expected to come up with a 10-15 slide presentation on the topics of weekly readings covered so far with relevant annotations to each slide. Presentations should be based on the required readings as well as any additional materials the students find appropriate.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First essay exam</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>Sunday of Lesson 4 by 2100 hrs CST.</td>
<td>The first essay exam is meant to evaluate understanding of the topics covered as well as specific terms and their applications in the field of national and international security. The students will be offered a list of six short essay questions out of which they shall chose two. The total length of the first essay exam should be approximately 6-8 pages.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Final essay exam</td>
<td>40%</td>
<td>Wednesday of Lesson 8 by 2100 hrs CST.</td>
<td>The final essay exam is the key requirement for the course that reflects analytical efforts of the students to independently conduct social science research. The final essay exam serves as an important exercise in how to design an independent social science research project. The students will be offered a list of three essay questions out of which they shall choose one. The total length of the final essay exam should be approximately 12-15 pages and should include individual efforts of a student to cover the issues identified during the course.</td>
