COURSE DESCRIPTION
History and the past are not the same thing. The past is everything that came before us, every war and every paper cut. History is the interpretation of that past, the sifting, organizing, and "making sense" of people, mostly dead, and events, mostly over.

Because this is a history class, then, it has an interpretative scheme, a set of principles that guided the sifting, the organizing, and the making sense—and I think it is only right that I lay such principles out at the beginning. I believe that history is composed, finally, of life stories.

We will spend considerable time in this course examining America's evolution from a huddled series of seaboard settlements to a mighty empire that, striding to the Pacific, turned suddenly on itself. We will examine major events like the Revolution and the Civil War. We will examine major trends like Romanticism and commercialization. But we will never forget that individual men and women lived in and through these events and trends, shaping them—shaped by them in turn—and teaching us one of history's most enduring lessons: The past may shape and constrain us—and we must therefore respect and understand it—but it cannot tell us who we are, much less who we will be. There is much that remains for us to decide.

READING LIST
The following books are required reading and will be available online. I will also add required supplemental readings throughout the semester at my discretion, all of which will be posted on our Blackboard class page.

* U.S. History from OpenStax (abbreviated on the schedule as “OS”, www.openstax.org/details/us-history). *Available in web view and PDF for free. You can also choose to download on iBooks/Kindle, or get a print version from OpenStax on Amazon.com

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board Exemplary Educational Objectives for Social and Behavioral Sciences

The objective of a social and behavioral science component of a core curriculum is to increase student knowledge of how social scientists discover, describe, and explain the interactions among individuals, groups, institutions, events, and ideas. Such knowledge will allow you:

- To examine historical processes across a range of time periods and cultures
- To analyze the effects of social, political, economic, and global forces on this nation
- To understand the evolution and current role of the U.S. in the world
- To identify and understand differences and commonalities within diverse cultures

Learning Outcomes

Here are my primary goals for this course:

- To forge a connection between students and the complicated and messy history from which we’ve emanated. By doing so, students will gain new insights into the modern world around them.
- To assemble and improve on a toolbox of skills students will need to succeed in college (and life): how to take notes, how to study, and how to read secondary and primary texts with a discerning and critical eye.
- To understand the notion of “citizenship” in our nation’s history—how it has been defined, reshaped, and contested by various groups over time.
- To develop a rudimentary grasp of the major flashpoints and alterations that have shaped the modern United States.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Effort

Your experience in this class will be determined primarily by the amount of effort you put into it. If you do the required reading, watch all of my lectures, take good notes, review your notes, develop independent insights into the course material, you will receive a grade commensurate with your effort. Please note that on Blackboard I have posted helpful tips on how to take notes, improve your studying, and develop the skills needed to get an A in this class. (See: "Get an A" on our Blackboard “Content” page)

Things You Need To Do Outside Of Class

The online home for this class is on the Blackboard website. This is where I will post lectures, announcements, study guides, additional readings, and grades. It is your responsibility to check Blackboard at least once a day. You will also be expected to check your university email regularly. Speaking of email...
How To Get In Touch With Me
Email is the best way to get in touch with me. Of course, you may drop in during virtual office hours, but I always prefer that you email me beforehand so I can better prepare for your questions. Between the hours of 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Monday-Friday, I aim to answer student emails within 24 hours. Generally, emails sent after 4:00 p.m. will be answered the followed day. Emails sent over the weekend (Saturday and Sunday) will be answered on Monday. I will not respond to email on university holidays. If you have not heard from me and 24 hours have passed, you may send the email again and in the subject line put “Second Notice”, “Second Attempt” etc.

Make Up Policy
All students are expected to turn in all assignments on time and attend all exams at their regularly-scheduled times. It is vitally important that, in the event you are absolutely unavailable to take an exam, that you inform me prior to the exam. Please note that make-up exams will never be given without a good reason. A “good reason” is essentially limited to University-sanctioned absences, certain overlapping exams, deaths in the family, and severe illness or injury. Additionally, I will require written evidence for a makeup exam which meets the above conditions, and I cannot allow make-ups to accommodate work or vacation schedules, “oversleeping” and missing part/all of an exam, non-functioning alarms, car trouble, etc.

HELP OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM

(Virtual) Office Hours *
No one ever comes to office hours, it’s sad. And yet, they can be incredibly helpful. I will be available every Monday and Wednesday via Blackboard Collaborate from 11am-1pm (and by appointment, just email me to find a different time), ready to answer any questions about course policies, help fill in the blanks from the notes you just took, provide a nudge in the right direction when you’re confused about a term on a study guide or a requirement on an assignment or to discuss how to improve on future test scores. Whatever it is, I’m here. I highly encourage every student to visit during office hours early on in the semester to introduce yourself so I can put a face with a name and answer any questions you may have about the course.

Required Use of Masks/Facial Coverings by Students in Class At Angelo State University
As a member of the Texas Tech University System, Angelo State University has adopted the mandatory Facial Covering Policy to ensure a safe and healthy classroom experience. Current research on the COVID-19 virus suggests there is a significant reduction in the potential for transmission of the virus from person to person by wearing a mask/facial covering that covers the nose and mouth areas. Therefore, in compliance with the university policy students in this class are required to wear a mask/facial covering before, during, and after class. Faculty members may also ask you to display your daily screening badge as a prerequisite to enter the classroom. You are also asked to maintain safe distancing practices to the best of your ability. For the safety of everyone, any student not appropriately wearing a mask/facial covering will be asked to leave the classroom immediately. The student will be responsible to make up any missed class content or work. Continued non-compliance with the Texas Tech University System Policy may result in disciplinary action through the Office of Student Conduct.

In your discussions and/or your papers, it is unacceptable to copy word-for-word without quotation marks and the source of the quotation. It is expected that you will
