Course Objectives
The discovery and settlement of the New World was one of the most important events in world history. In 1492 the entire continent of North America belonged solely to indigenous peoples, but gradually they lost control of their lands before the onslaught of European invasion. Eventually, a new nation emerged, a nation founded on ideas of liberty and individual freedom. But freedom was only given to whites, and millions of African-Americans lived as slaves until the Civil War and American Indians fought to hang on to their land and culture against the new expanding nation. Always there is a tension in America between its ideals and the sometimes unpleasant legacy of the past. While no survey can possibly include every aspect of U.S. history, this class will attempt to introduce students to the most important events in U.S. history, and it will provide some perspective on where we have been as a people and how we got where we are today. The class will be set up as primarily a lecture class. At the end of this syllabus you will find a tentative schedule. We may, or may not, actually stick to this, but it will give you an idea of what to expect.

Format
This class will be in a traditional face to face format. I will post the PowerPoints online, roughly weekly. In addition, textbook chapters will also be posted to supplement the PowerPoints and lectures from the American Yawp (http://www.americanyawp.com). Students who are required to isolate can follow the class via the PowerPoints and the readings in the online textbook.
Above all else: If you feel sick, stay home. I'm happy to help you catch up if you miss a day for illness.

Student Learning Outcomes: History 1301
This course will examine American history from the colonial era through the Civil War. We will study the ethnic, cultural, religious, racial, and class foundations of American society and politics. Students will demonstrate the Core competency requirement for Critical Thinking Skill. The Student Learning Outcomes for Critical Thinking Skills are explicated below. Assessment of Critical Thinking Skills-Student Learning Outcomes will be by a standardized pre- and (embedded) post-test, as well as by a writing rubric, included at the end of this syllabus.

• Students will be able to analyze cause and effect in the history of the United States to the Civil War.
• Students will be able to analyze the relationship among American economics, politics, demography, and social structure to 1865.
• Students will be able to construct an in-class essay which synthesizes assigned readings and lectures into a coherent, fact-based narrative that demonstrates critical thinking skills.
