A general diffusion of knowledge [is] essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people . . .

- Texas Constitution, Art. VII

Every college and university receiving state support or state aid from public funds shall give a course of instruction in government or political science which includes consideration of the Constitution of the United States and the constitutions of the states, with special emphasis on that of Texas.

- Texas Education Code, Sec. 51.301

This class is an online, asynchronous, accelerated eight week course. The pace of the course will be much quicker than a full semester course, and the weekly reading load will be heavy.

Course Description: THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS, speaking through their State Constitution, have determined that all citizens, in order to properly perform the duties of citizenship, need to be familiar with the Constitution of the United States and the Texas State Constitution. To fulfill this need, Texas Law requires that six semester hours dedicated to that purpose be completed by all students attending institutions of higher learning receiving state funds. Here at Angelo State University, this requirement is met by taking POLS 2305 and 2306.

Written constitutions are the central legitimating symbols of Texan and American political life. Citizens therefore need to understand how their constitutions frame political controversy and how they influence political and social change. Also, these constitutions were constructed on the basis of certain political principles. Therefore, in addition to the basic structures and institutions of government, we will study important debates over their purposes and principles. Most importantly, we will investigate the meaning of democracy and republican government and of liberty and equality from the Founding until the present day. We will examine the important function of citizenship and of federalism in our democratic republic. We will also discuss patriotism and the distinctive political culture of Texas.

GRADING

Lesson Journal	60%
Final Essay Exam	40%
Extra Credit: Movie Blog

Lessons: The course schedule is divided into seven lessons, plus the final exam. Each Lesson covers one week of the course, as can be seen in the Course Schedule below. Lessons open at 12am on Monday of each week (unless there is a holiday) and close at 11:59pm on the following Sunday. Once the scheduled time for the lesson is over that lesson will be closed, and we will be moving on to the next lesson. Students must keep up with the Schedule, and there is no “catching up” in this course.

Written Work: The grades in this course are based entirely on written work, and this work is focused entirely on your engagement with the readings assigned in the lessons. Three important points must be kept in mind when setting out to do this work.

1. Plagiarism will not be tolerated. This course has a zero tolerance policy regarding plagiarism. Plagiarism is when you take someone else’s words or ideas and present them as your own. Even if you change most or all of the words around, it is still plagiarism if you begin by copying some portion of another person’s work. Students are responsible for understanding what plagiarism is and for avoiding it. Any and all instances of plagiarism or cheating will result in automatic failure for the course and will be reported to the university.
2. Use of outside sources is not allowed as a resource for your written work. An outside source is any source not assigned in this course. Use of outside sources (such as material found on the internet), instead of the sources assigned by the professor, will result in a zero for the particular Journal entry or Exam question where the outside source has been used.
3. All references to the assigned readings and all quotations must be backed up with citations, so the professor can check your claims and probe your arguments. Because only the assigned readings are allowed as sources (and no “research papers” are assigned in this course), the appropriate citation method is a simple one. Whenever you make a claim about, or a reference to, the text, simply use the appropriate abbreviation along with the page number. Examples include the following: (DA, 43) or (APR, 55) or (Young, 355), if quoting from any of the three major texts assigned. The individual readings linked in the Lesson will usually come without page numbers. Author and title are usually sufficient when citing these. For example, (Thomas Jefferson, “On Citizenship”). Sometimes, however, there is no single, official author, for example: (Texas Constitution, Art. IV, Sec. 3). Citing my Lesson Introductions is also permissible, like this, (Bartl, Lesson One Intro), but it should be used only when none of the other sources would suffice to make the point. Excessive dependence on the Lesson Introductions will indicate that the student has not sufficiently read and struggled with the assigned readings.

Lesson Journal: Students will write a Journal entry for each Lesson (7 total), reflecting on the questions, problems, ideas, etc., which are found in the readings assigned for that Lesson. Each entry must be a minimum of 500 words. They are due by the close of each lesson. Entries will be accepted for half credit if submitted within 24 hours past the closing of the lesson. No entries will be accepted more than 24 hrs late. Detailed instructions on writing and posting are on Blackboard. Please read those Journal Instructions carefully prior to working on this assignment, and consult them throughout the semester whenever you have questions regarding the assignment.

Final Exam: A comprehensive essay exam will be posted on Blackboard during the eighth week of the course and will be due Thursday 3/10/22.

Extra Credit Movie Blog: I have provided a list of movies, which you may watch and write about for extra credit. You will find a tab with the list and instructions on Blackboard. Extra credit is considered while final grades are being tabulated. It is not worth any standard amount of points, but in close cases may cause a student’s final grade to be bumped up to the next letter. Any effects of extra credit on one’s grade will not be visible in Blackboard at any time but will only become apparent in the final course grade in Rampart. Warning: Extra credit will not make up for missing work; “extra” means “in addition to,” not “instead of.”

Required Use of Masks/Facial Coverings by Students

As a member of the Texas Tech University System, Angelo State University has adopted the mandatory Facial Covering Policy to ensure a safe and healthy classroom experience. Current research on the COVID-19 virus suggests there is a significant reduction in the potential for transmission of the virus from person to person by wearing a mask/facial covering that covers the nose and mouth areas. Therefore, in compliance with the university policy students in this class are required to wear a mask/facial covering before, during, and after class. Faculty members may also ask you to display your daily screening badge as a prerequisite to enter the classroom. You are also asked to maintain safe distancing practices to the best of your ability. For the safety of everyone, any student not appropriately wearing a mask/facial covering will be asked to leave the classroom immediately. The student will be responsible to make up any missed class content or work. Continued non-compliance with the Texas Tech University System Policy may result in disciplinary action through the Office of Student Conduct.
