“A short story is a love affair; a novel is a marriage. A short story is a photograph; a novel is a film.” Lorrie Moore

“I love short stories because I believe they are the way we live. They are what our friends tell us, in their pain and joy, their passion and rage, their yearning and their cry against injustice.” Andre Dubus

“If we’re lucky, writer and reader alike, we’ll finish the last line or two of a short story and then just sit for a minute, quietly. Ideally, we’ll ponder what we’ve just written or read; maybe our hearts or intellects will have been moved off the peg just a little from where they were before.” Raymond Carver

Required texts:

Sachdeva, Anjali. All the Names They Used for God. Spiegel & Grau, 2018.

Purpose, Objectives, & Learning Outcomes:

Upon completing this course, students will be able to
1. read and analyze complex works of literature;
2. recognize the importance of detail and supporting evidence when positing ideas;
3. demonstrate the way American short fiction exists within historical, cultural, and social spaces in time.

Other than those SLOs, my goal is that each of you gains a greater appreciation of modern and contemporary American short fiction. I struggled mightily choosing texts for this course. The ugly truth, though, is that if I choose books tomorrow, I would might choose a different Carver collection, we might read E. Annie Proulx, Tobias Wolff, Jayne Anne Philips, or any number of other writers. So many great works but so little time. At the end of this syllabus, you’ll see a longer list of modern and contemporary American literature. In your spare time, you should read some (or all) of the works.
Please note: These are modern and contemporary works and they deal with contemporary issues. If you cannot stomach discussions about school shootings, rape, murder, abortion, homosexuality, religion, adultery, or other issues you see daily in the newspaper, you should not take this course. In addition, these works do contain some rough and language some of you might find reprehensible. Be prepared.

Attendance: There is a direct correlation between attendance and performance. In an online class, your attendance is marked by completion of blogs and quizzes. Our assignments for any given week are typically due Sunday at 11:59 pm. However, I also realize that life throws us curveballs. If at any moment you struggle to complete assignments, readings, or other work in this course, you need to email me. We have some measure of flexibility. Each assignment is designed to help us build certain skill sets. I’m more interested in you completing the assignments than I am in deadlines. Note, though, that a summer class has only so much flexibility. In other words, your goal is to finish every assignment on time, but if you struggle for any reason, let me know. We’ll work together, in as much as possible, to help you be successful.

Grades:

Students will demonstrate progress on course objectives and learning outcomes via

Two reviews/Short Essays  40%
Final exam  20%
Blogs/quizzes  15%
Research paper  25%

1) You will write two book reviews/short essays (500-1000 words). I will provide information about how to write a book review/short essay. Plagiarism will result in an F for the course. These essays are academic responses not personal responses.
3) The final exam will be a timed essay and comprehensive.
4) Blog Posts/Quizzes: You will blog on all of our works, sometimes more than once. Those blogs are less formal than the books reviews and should give you a great opportunity to try out ideas and take some chances as you discuss the works. Quizzes ask you to provide detailed answers to questions about our works.
5) The research paper will be 6-8 pages of text. You should use MLA formatting. Please note that some of our contemporary works will not have direct critical sources. We will discuss how to approach a contemporary text and research. More information during the semester.

Title IX At ASU
The University prohibits discrimination based on sex, which includes pregnancy, sexual orientation, gender identity, and other types of Sexual Misconduct. Sexual Misconduct is a broad term encompassing all forms of gender-based harassment or discrimination including: sexual assault, sex-based discrimination, sexual exploitation, sexual harassment, public indecency, interpersonal violence (domestic violence and/or dating violence), and stalking. As a faculty member, I am a Responsible Employee, meaning I am obligated by law and ASU policy to report any allegations I am notified of to the Office of Title IX Compliance.

Students are encouraged to report any incidents of sexual misconduct directly to ASU’s Office of Title IX Compliance and the Director of Title IX Compliance/Title IX Coordinator:

Michelle Boone, J.D.
Director of Title IX Compliance/Title IX Coordinator
Mayer Administration Building, Room 210
325-942-2022; michelle.boone@angelo.edu

You may also file a report online 24/7 at www.angelo.edu/incident-form. If you wish to speak to someone about an incident in confidence, you may contact the University Health Clinic and Counseling Center at 325-942-2173 or the ASU Crisis Helpline at 325-486-6345.

For more information about Title IX in general, you may visit www.angelo.edu/title-ix.

Accommodation Statement
If you have a documented disability (or think you may have a disability) and, as a result, need a reasonable accommodation to participate in this class or complete course requirements, contact the Student Affairs Office as soon as possible at 325-942-2047 or studentservices@angelo.edu. It is located in the Houston Harte University Center, Suite 112. To receive any academic accommodation, you must be appropriately registered with Student Affairs. Student Affairs works with students confidentially and does not disclose any disability-related information without their permission.

Academic Integrity
Students are responsible for knowing and adhering to the Academic Integrity policy, which is outlined in the ASU Student Handbook. Plagiarism is a type of academic dishonesty. It occurs when writers deliberately use another person’s language, ideas, or materials and present them as their own without properly acknowledging the source. Students who plagiarize will earn an F for the course.

Observances of Religious Holidays
A student who intends to observe a religious holy day should make that intention known in writing to the instructor prior to the absence. A student who is absent from classes for the observance of a religious holy day shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment scheduled for that day within what the instructor deems a reasonable time after the absence.

Rough Calendar of Events: The dates and readings below are approximate. The actual course calendar, reading list, and assignments will be in the BB course. Daily assignments for each week are due Sunday by 11:59 pm. Short Essays, Research paper due date, and final exam are due during the week.
Summer 2 (English 4329): Suggested readings in order to complete the texts. There is no work associated with each day. In order to have time to reflect and complete assignments by Sunday, I’m assuming you will complete the readings by Friday.

A Short and Incomplete list of texts and works you should all read.

This list is not exhaustive nor is the list a compilation of great works. As I think about modern and contemporary works students should read, I add them a list of works I’ve read by American authors published since 1985 that I liked. I have no doubt there are more works, and all these writers have more recent works.

Bechdel, Alison. Fun Home (2006).—graphic memoir
Carver, Raymond. Short Cuts (1993) and every single short story he’s written.
Clifton, Lucille. Blessing the Boats (2000)—poetry
Collins, Max. Road to Perdition. (1998)—graphic novel
Didion, Joan. The Year of Magical Thinking. (2005)—essays/memoir; Play It As It Lays (1970) but one of the great novels of the 20th century
Dove, Rita. Any of her poetry books.
Egan, Jennifer. A Visit from the Goon Squad. (2011)
Gellhorn, Martha. The View from the Ground. (1989). Gellhorn is considered one of the great war correspondents of the 20th century. This collection of essays was rereleased recently.

Hayes, Terence—anything (poetry)

Herrera, Juan Felipe. Border Crossover with a Lamborghini Dream (1999—poetry). He also has a novel in verse titled Crashboomlove that is great for middle schoolers.

hooks, bell. Read her essays.

Johnson, Denis. Train Dreams (2011)

Kushner, Tony. Angels in America (1993)—play

Letts, Tracy. August: Osage County. (2008)—play

McCarthy, Cormac. Blood Meridian (1985) and everything else he’s written Oates, Joyce Carol. Anything. She’s one of America’s most prolific novelists.

Ozick, Cynthia. Read her essays.

Pynchon, Thomas. Inherent Vice (2009) but he’s most famous for Gravity’s Rainbow or The Crying of Lot 49.

Sachdeva, Anjali. All the Names They Used for God. (2018—stories)

Song, Kathy. Any of her poetry books.

Ware, Chris. Jimmy Corrigan, the Smartest Kid on Earth (2000)—graphic novel

Whitehead, Colson. Harlem Shuffle (2021, but all his stuff is great)
