CJ2210 Introduction to Policing, Curriculum Development: 2014.

Additional Comments: Adapted current materials into an online format beginning in the Summer 2014 term

CJ3347 Statistics for Criminal Justice, Curriculum Development: 2014.

Additional Comments: Adapted current materials into an online format beginning in the Summer 2014 term

CJ5380N Advanced Research Methods Practicum, Curriculum Development: 2012.

Additional Comments: New course developed for Texas State University's Criminal Justice MSCJ Program.
Initially offered and taught in the Spring 2012 semester.

CJ7335 Criminal Justice Leadership and Management, Curriculum Development: 2011.

Additional Comments: Course developed within Texas State University's Criminal Justice Ph.D. Program existing curriculum. Initially offered and taught in the Summer 2011 semester. See syllabus in II.B. Courses Taught.

CJ 7313 Race and Ethnicity in Crime and Criminal Justice, Curriculum Development: 2010.

Additional Comments: Course developed within Texas State University's Criminal Justice Ph.D. Program existing curriculum. Initially offered and taught in the Spring 2010 semester. See syllabus in II.B. Courses Taught.

CJ 7330 Qualitative Research Methods, Curriculum Development: 2010.

Additional Comments: Course developed within Texas State University's Criminal Justice Ph.D. Program existing curriculum. Initially offered and taught in the Fall 2010 semester. See syllabus in II.B. Courses Taught.

Developed curriculum map and course sequencing plan for research methods and statistics courses within Texas State University's Criminal Justice Ph.D. Program., Curriculum Development: 2009.

Redesign of International Criminal Justice Systems Comparative Study Program, Curriculum Development: 2007.

Additional Comments: Accompanied undergraduate and graduate students to London, England and conducted a comparative study of the American and British criminal justice systems. This annual program was originally developed in 2000 and I accompanied the tour initially in 2001. At the conclusion of this year's program I redesigned the curriculum and learning objectives to enhance the viability of this annual international study program.

Interdisciplinary Bachelor's Degree in Forensic Science, Curriculum Development: 2005.

Additional Comments: Working with an interdisciplinary team of scholars representing the Chemistry, Biological Sciences, Anthropology, Psychology and Criminal Justice Departments and the Sedgwick County Regional Forensic Sciences Center to develop a new interdisciplinary degree program called the Bachelor of Science in Forensic Science. This degree is one of only three interdisciplinary degrees offered at WSU. In addition to identifying the existing courses required for this degree I created seven new courses specifically for the Forensic Science degree. After the degree was approved by the Kansas Board of Regents in 2005, I was asked by the interdisciplinary faculty to direct the program.

Special Topics Course on Racial Profiling, Curriculum Development: 2004.

Additional Comments: Developed a Special Topics course on racial profiling and taught it for the first time during the Fall 2004 semester and repeated in the Spring 2007 semester. This course capitalizes on the extensive racial profiling research and community service conducted while at Wichita State University.

Graduate Level Statistics and Quantitative Analysis Course, Curriculum Development: 2001.

Additional Comments: Re-designed an existing course (Criminal Justice 802) into a traditional graduate level statistics class. This course was revised as part of an overall reformatting of the requirements for the Masters Degree in Criminal Justice at Wichita State University.

Research Paper Project Method, Curriculum Development: 1999.

Additional Comments: Developed a research paper writing method for the research methods classes. A similar system, called The Notebook Method, was originally developed by Dr. Patricia Shields at Texas State University. It essentially transforms the research paper writing process into a linear project management exercise thereby making the research process more structured, consistent over the long term, and importantly, 'teachable'. This enables the professor to evaluate how the students progress through the research process.

Personnel Practices in Criminal Justice (hybrid), First Time Course Preparation, Texas State University. Approved: November 2018 - May 2019.

Additional Comments: Developed hybrid delivery model for this course as part of the Executive MSCJ Program

E. Teaching Grants and Contracts

1. Funded External Teaching Grants and Contracts:

Withrow, Brian L (Co-Principal). Law Enforcement Officer Training for the Identification of Elder Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation, Kansas Department of Aging, $5,956.00. (Funded: 2000). Grant.

Additional Comments: These funds were used to train in-service police officers on how to recognize and respond to incidents of elder abuse. This program was developed in partnership with Dr. Mary Corrigan, Gerontology Department at Wichita State University. In addition to a roll call training program, a four hour training program was delivered numerous times throughout 2000 and 2001.

Withrow, Brian L (Principal). Mental Illness and Criminal Justice, Mrs. Barbara Torbey (private citizen), $5,000.00. (Funded: 2000). Grant.

Additional Comments: As per the donor's instructions, these funds (unsolicited) were used to develop materials and train criminal justice personnel on how to recognize and respond to individuals with mental illness. The program ("Mental Health Symposium") was delivered in a one-day seminar on October 26, 2001 to twenty-seven representatives from all levels of the criminal justice system. The Honorable Ginger Lerner-Wren, a national expert on justice and mental illness issues, delivered the program.

2. Submitted, but not Funded, External Teaching Grants and Contracts:

Withrow, Brian L. Weapons of Mass Destruction Training, State of Kansas.
(Submitted: 2003). Grant.
