Professional Work Experience

2019—Present Adjunct Professor, Angelo State University

I teach one course each semester in the Master of Science in Counseling Psychology Program at Angelo State University

1977—Present Private Practice

During my first ten years as a psychologist, I offered traditional assessment, psychotherapy and consulting with schools, industries, courts and social agencies. The interface between law and human behavior intrigued me. Seasoning and experience allowed me to focus exclusively on matters involving the justice system and law enforcement. I surveyed community attitudes, designed studies to aid in jury selection, taught witnesses to tell the truth more effectively, developed trial strategies, investigated the mental health of prospective peace officers and conducted psychological examinations in criminal, civil and administrative proceedings. I currently limit my practice to areas that interest me most, conducting assessments in legal proceedings and serving law enforcement agencies.

1977—1980 Clinical Psychologist and Outpatient Coordinator, Concho Valley Center for Human Advancement, San Angelo, Texas

1976—1977 Director of Counseling Center, University of Tennessee at Nashville, Nashville, Tennessee
